The reporte was invited to take a hand, but modestly declined and backet up to a large handome red Scotch sarcophagus monumen which he took a loafer's lien on and begast to work his information pump to learn the cause of all the commotion. He was informed that they had just finished unloading the sixth car of work recently received-two cars of granite, two of marble and two of stone bases. They have now unquestionably the largest and finest stock carried by any firm in the state, they being recently compelled to build on an a workshop, and their immense salesroom is at present crowded with fine jobs in and to close at 30:30 a. m. W. Q. Church, manager of the stree railway company was seen late yesterday afternoon and when asked what his company would do to defend their interests in the case, said: "I do not know the contents of the petition yet. No notice has been given to me of the city's intention or suit, and I am not in a position to state what action the company will take, but I sincerely hope no unwise step on the part of the city will jeopardize the present egotiations that are pending and which are nearer a point of maturity, just at this present date, than ever before. It is no small proposition to complete a big street rallway and lighting deal that is estimated to cost close to $250,000, more so, when it is without a showing of some ground for its necessity from a profitable standpoint. However, I candidly believe before another regular meeting of the city council two weeks from tomorrow night, Wichita will be confronted with a business proposition to build a street rallway that will meet with the entire approbation of the city government and the citizens at

"For some two weeks things have been looking brighter than for months, and parties right here in the city have been in communication and close touch with railway men in the east and who are now or their way to visit Wichita to pay a second visit, with the view of offering to build a system that will be one of the most complete and up-to-date plants in the west. They are practical and experienced electric railway and light people, who have the money to build and equip and number of miles of railway and a light system without floating a single dollar's worth of bonds.

"I have been remaining quiet and not talking for publication in the newspapers for some time, as I felt that enough notoriety had been spread broadcast concern ing Wichita and her street railway matters, which has only resulted in the hamdicap of what business arrangements were pending. But since this last stroke has been aimed at the existing company, I feel compelled to make some explanation of now matters stand. The people of this city will get a new system and before very much more time or talk is concumed, and at this particular moment it is rather unpleasant to be obliged to face the courts in a useless and expensive litigation that only helps to complicate and not untangle that which exists."

The council will meet tomorrow night and its action is awaited with some interest to learn what they will introduce in the way of a report on street railway matters, and then again, it may be decided to await the results of the suit in petition filed yesterday.
